

WE NEED YOU!

PANEL READERS NEEDED FOR U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

The International and Foreign Language Education (IFLE) office in the U.S. Department of Education administers a variety of international programs. IFLE continually seeks language and area studies specialists to serve as readers for grant competitions.

Readers participate in a panel review of applications (usually no longer than one to two weeks), and are provided with modest compensation. Most reviews are conducted electronically, via the U.S. Department of Education's G5 system, and travel will not be necessary. In cases where travel is necessary, readers are provided with roundtrip travel, hotel room, and meal allowances. The review process involves orientation, reading of the applications, and daily discussions with other panelists. Scores are based on U.S. Department of Education selection criteria. Programs include:

FULBRIGHT-HAYS PROGRAMS

- ✓ Doctoral Dissertation Research Abroad
- ✓ Group Projects Abroad
- ✓ Seminars Abroad

TITLE VI OF THE HIGHER EDUCATION ACT PROGRAMS

- ✓ Centers for International Business Education
- ✓ Foreign Language and Area Studies Fellowships
- ✓ Language Resource Centers
- ✓ National Resource Centers
- ✓ Undergraduate International Studies and Foreign Language

We are especially interested in individuals with the following qualifications:

- Teaching, research, and practical experience in international education
- Recent experience in administering international education programs, or programs of a similar nature
- Research and/or practical experience overseas in international education
- Area studies and/or foreign language specialization
- MA or Ph.D.

Thank you for your assistance in expanding and enhancing our reader pool!

How Do I Apply?

Office of Postsecondary Education Field Reader Applications and Records Now in G5 System

The Office of Postsecondary Education (OPE)'s Field Reader system (FRS) has been retired. G5 will be the new system for accepting field reviewer applications and updating existing field reviewer records.

If you are interested in applying to be considered as a new field reader and do not already have an account in G5, please create one by going to www.g5.gov and clicking on the link on the Home page that says "Not Registered? Sign up," and follow these steps:

1. Upon logging in, select "My Profile" under the "Main" tab in the top navigation bar;
2. Scroll to the bottom of the page, select "Reviewer" in the Available Type list, and click "Continue;"
3. Complete your reviewer profile tabs to the left of the page;
4. Make sure to "Submit" your inputs upon completion.

If you are interested in serving as a fielder reader and already have an account in G5, please follow these steps:
