SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Introduction

The Privacy Act requires the Department to publish in the Federal Register this notice of an altered system of records (5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) and (11)). The Department's regulations implementing the Privacy Act are contained in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) in 34 CFR part 5b.

The Privacy Act applies to a record about an individual that contains individually identifiable information that is retrieved by a unique identifier associated with each individual, such as a name or social security number. The information about each individual is called a “record” and the system, whether manual or computer-based, is called a “system of records.” The Privacy Act requires each agency to publish notices of systems of records in the Federal Register and to prepare reports to OMB whenever the agency publishes a new or altered system of records.

A system of records is considered “altered” whenever an agency expands the types or categories of information maintained, significantly expands the types or categories of individuals about whom records are maintained, changes the purpose for which the information is used, changes the equipment configuration in a way that creates substantially greater access to the records, adds an exemption pursuant to subsections (j) or (k) of the Privacy Act, or adds a routine use disclosure to the system. Since the last amendment to this system of records, which was published in the Federal Register on January 30, 2002, (67 FR 4415), a number of technical changes are needed to update and accurately describe the current system of records. This notice expands the type of information maintained in the system, clarifies the categories of individuals, adds two new routine use disclosures, and changes the equipment configuration used to store the information in order to create greater access to the records by OIG employees through the use of a Web-based computer system.

Under the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, 5 U.S.C. Appendix, Inspectors General, including the Department's Inspector General, are responsible for conducting, supervising, and coordinating investigations relating to programs and operations of the Federal agency for which their office is established. This system of records facilitates the OIG's performance of this statutory duty. The changes proposed in the attached notice are intended to expand the information maintained in the system, change the equipment configuration used to store the information in order to create greater access to the records by OIG staff, and add routine uses to make statutorily required disclosures of information contained in the system. Collectively, these revisions will enhance the ability of the OIG to combat fraud, waste, and abuse in the Department's programs and operations, as required by the Inspector General Act.

This system includes records on individuals who are the subject of open or closed OIG investigations. The records contain evidence compiled by OIG investigators, investigative reports, referrals to the Department and to other investigative or prosecutorial authorities, and records of disposition of cases. These records include, but are not limited to, electronic information including names, addresses, social security numbers, dates of birth, and aliases for subjects, targets, witnesses, and victims associated with investigations; reports of interviews; investigative memoranda; requests and approvals for case openings and closings and for the use of special investigative techniques requiring approval by management; and electronic copies of photographs, scanned documents, and electronic media such as audio and video. The system will store investigative work products, as well as all investigation results and other tracking information needed to identify trends, patterns, and other indicators of fraud and abuse within the Department's programs and operations.

The information in this system of records will be used for purposes of— (1) conducting and documenting investigations by the OIG or other investigative agencies regarding the Department's programs and operations and reporting the results of investigations to other Federal agencies, other public authorities or professional organizations that have the authority to bring criminal prosecutions or civil or administrative actions, or to impose other disciplinary sanctions; (2) documenting the outcome of OIG investigations; (3) maintaining a record of the activities that were the subject of investigations; (4) reporting investigative findings to other Department components for their use in operating and evaluating their programs or operations, and in the imposition of civil or administrative sanctions; (5) maintaining a record of complaints and allegations received relative to Department programs and operations and documenting the outcome of OIG reviews of those complaints and allegations; (6) coordinating relationships with other Federal agencies, State and local governmental agencies, and nongovernmental entities in matters relating to the statutory responsibilities of the OIG; (7) acting as a repository and source for information necessary to fulfill the reporting requirements of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, 5 U.S.C. Appendix; (8) reporting on the activities of the Inspector General to the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency; and (9) participating in the investigative qualitative assessment review process requirements of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 (Pub. L. 107-296.)
