the people signing for loans need to know the inner workings of the system up front. They need to know that they have no rights, the lender has all the rights on their side. I did not know that when i got my loan. The fact that you cannot declare bankruptcy, that they can take your child support, social security, garnish your wages in the event that things do not work out in the job market and you do not get the dream job that you thought was out there. There is also the fact that they do not inform or counsel people about their career choices, sometimes the student does not know that they will not get a job if what they are taking is not right for them, more information would be good. I took criminal justice at age 48, that was not right for me, there are age restrictions in this field, there is physical agility that has to be passed in some or most of the jobs, plus women are not always picked for these jobs, i was passed over many times and a young man was hired, i have not worked in my field of study, i could not pass the Queens step test or physical agility. I work at wal mart, you do not need a BA to work there. The fact that the fees are exorbitant, you borrow 20,000, you then owe 30,000. No one informed me of that and i had no say about anything until it was too late and no one was listening anyway.
