HEP: Case Scenario #1

A project is funded to serve 30 students in a budget period. The project recruited 25 new participants during the 2016-17 budget period. Four students returned to continue in this budget period. These four students were reported as persisters in the previous budget year's APR.

Additionally, two students who were reported as withdrawals in the previous budget year's APR have also participated during this budget period.

What are the breakdowns for the Reporting Period (Block A)?

Funded to be Served: ?

Actually Served: ?

New Participants: ?

Returning Participants:?

Solution For Scenario #1

Breakdown For Block A:

Funded to be Served: 30

Actually Served: 31

New Participants: $25+2=27$

Returning Participants: 4 (Persisters from previous reporting period)

HEP: Case Scenario #2

From the previous question, we observe that Project A is serving 31 students during the 2016-17 budget period (reporting period). Additional facts:

- 30 students took the HSE exam by June 30.
- 26 of the above 30 students passed and received their HSE Diploma by the APR due date 11/17/2017.
- 5 students, therefore, have not passed their HSE yet.

Project anticipates that all students who did not receive the HSE will register again for next budget period (2017-18). However, only two students officially registered by APR submission deadline (11/17/2017) and received 12 hours of instruction or took the HSE test.

What are the breakdowns for the end of reporting period (Block A2)?

Only two students who did not receive their HSE officially registered for HEP for the next budget period (2017-18) by the APR submission deadline (11/17/2017) and received 12 hours of instruction or took the HSE test.

HEP: Knowledge Check

Questions?

1. What will the Student Status be in the previous budget period and current budget period:
 - a) If s/he took 12 hours of instruction during the previous budget period and stopped coming to class, but returned and received 12 hours of instruction during the current budget period before the APR due date?
 - b) If s/he received 12 hours of instruction in the previous budget period, didn't attain a HSE and returned in the current budget period, but did not officially register and receive 12 hours of instruction until after the APR due date?

HEP: Knowledge Check

2. Is it necessary for persisters to re-enroll for 12 hours of instructional services or for the sole purpose of taking an HSE assessment in the subsequent budget period?
