

Tennessee SCORE's blog: The SCORE Sheet
http://thescoresheet.org

The SCORE Sheet
State Collaborative on Reforming Education

HOME ABOUT US CONTRIBUTORS CATEGORIES VIDEOS TNSCORE.ORG

SCORE Institute Focuses State Leaders on Common Core Standards
MAY 16, 2012 by Kyle Southern in Policy

On Tuesday, leaders from across Tennessee gathered in Nashville to engage in a broad-ranging discussion about better preparing Tennessee's students through the Common Core State Standards. Governor Bill Haslam, Tennessee Commissioner of Education Kevin Huffman, and SCORE's Founder and Chairman, Former U.S. Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, all led portions of the program. SCORE hosted the event, and we designed the agenda to address questions many policymakers, educators, parents, and community leaders have about the standards:

- What is Common Core, and what is Tennessee's timeline for implementation?

ABOUT US

The SCORE Sheet is the online conversation on public education reform in Tennessee, and is hosted by the State Collaborative on Reforming Education \(SCORE\). Regardless of perspective, contributors share a common goal: that every child graduates from high school prepared for college or the workforce. Learn more...

Internet | Protected Mode: On 9:46 AM 5/17/2012

This information is provided as an example for the viewer's convenience at this convening and is not generated nor endorsed by the U.S. Department of Education. No endorsement by the U.S Department of Education of any product, commodity, service or enterprise mentioned in these presentations is intended nor should be inferred.

In addition, the instructional practices discussed or shown in the presentations are not intended to mandate, direct, or control a State's local educational agencies' or schools' specific instructional content, academic achievement system and assessments, curriculum or program of instruction.