Dear Family, Your child is learning to write a story.

- Write a story about something scary that happened to you.
- Write an opening sentence that will get the reader interested in your story.

- Now write down several events you’re going to include in your story.

- Number the events and put them in order that will lead to an interesting ending.
- Write an ending sentence that repeats what you said in the beginning or says the same thing in a different way.

- Rewrite the story on a separate piece of paper.
- Read your story out loud to your family. Ask your family to help you think of a good title for your story.
